

CALACHEM is working toward sustainable development, operates within the valid legal framework and meets all licensing requirements. The company works according to defined principles with regard to safety, health and environmental protection.

CALACHEM is a member of the British Chemical Industries Association (CIS) and the Responsible Care Program, and certified to recognised standards (BSI 14001). The company is active in its local communities and communicates regularly with authorities, politicians and municipal associations.

CALACHEM is making a sustained effort to reduce its energy consumption and waste volume, in order to achieve the maximum environmental efficiency of all production processes. Management has overall responsibility for matters of safety, health and environmental protection. In addition, there are regular meetings of SH&E (Safety, Health and Environment) committees and responsible persons